

Goldman Sachs One Million Black Women

Black in Business

Asahi Pompey: We know that Black women are starting businesses faster than any other demographic in this country. We took our 15-year legacy of working with small businesses and we built Black in Business specifically tailored to the needs of Black women solopreneurs.

Female Voice: Black in Business is a curated series of workshops and trainings. It's an amazing opportunity to help Black women focus on technical tools and strategies to help them grow and scale.

Jessica Taylor: You all are CEOs of you're business.

Shelly F.: Participating has shown me so much about myself. It allowed me to be myself and also honor all the transformative ways of becoming a CEO. This has given me that grounding I can pour back into my business.

Minke R.: This program is a catalyst for your business.

Tioana S.: I am a CEO. I was a CEO before I came here.

But being here just let me know that I'm right where I'm supposed to be.

David Solomon: Thank you for choosing Black in Business. We're excited to see where the future takes you all.

Gernissia C.: I want to be profitable, and I want to have longevity. And I feel that this program has allowed me to do both.

Asahi Pompey: We're focused on turning your ideas, your dreams into reality and economic growth.

Dr. Charmain J.: We're all going to do this together. And I can't wait to see how all of our businesses evolve over the next two to three years.

Female Voice: We've been treated like queens. The information is invaluable.

Asahi Pompey: Now, are you ready to grow your business?